SEEKS LIQUOR INJUNCTION

PROSECUTOR WOULD CLOSE CAFE AT HOPKINS.

CHARGES GAMING TOO

Charles Sewell Fined $1000 and Sentenced to Year in Jail—Others Plead Guilty

Application for a temporary injunction to close the Sewell restaurant at Hopkins today was filed in circuit court against Charles Sewell and Mrs. Grace M. Hall by Prosecuting Attorney George P. Wright.

The defendants, notified to appear in court for the hearing today, were alleged by the application for injunction to have operated a common nuisance in the form of a gambling and liquor joint. At 3 o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Hall and her husband, J. W. ("Granny") Hall, were in court but no action had been taken.

It is claimed by the defendants, the sheriff's officers said, that Mrs. Hall owned the building in which Sewell operated a restaurant. Sewell this morning was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000 when he pleaded guilty to possession of liquor.

The Hall building is located on the north side of Barnard street in Hopkins, just east of the Farmers and Merchants Bank and a raid was made Sunday.

The prosecuting attorney stated in the application that for a long time the cafe has been operating as a subterfuge for the sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, that the place "has caused large numbers of idle, lawless, immoral and dangerous persons, addicted to use of intoxivating liquor and gambling to assemble there and by reason thereof much disorderly conduct, tending to destroy public morals has been indulged in. The building is a "public nuisance" and therefore the state prays for an order to enjoin the defendants from selling liquor and from operating a gambling house.

Sewell Gets Limit.

Sewell pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor in court this morning and was given the limit by Judge John M. Dawson. A fine of $1,000 was assessed and the judge added a sentence of one year in the county jail.

Sewell was arrested Sunday, following a raid on his restaurant by sheriff's officers, who found a large quantity of alcohol in the building. Sewell also is charged in justice court with a felony, that of selling a half pint of liquor to Harold Matheny, a cook in one of the Maryville restaurants. He pleaded not guilty this morning to the charge of selling and disposing of intoxicating liquor, when the case was docketed in circuit court. Bail of $1,000 was fixed.

Matheny, who was arrested over the week-end by Deputy Sheriff Heifner, who found Matheny attempting to start his car on the road south of Maryville, pleaded guilty today to possession of intoxicating liquor and was fined $200 and sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Elmo Pair Plead Not Guilty.

Wilbur Crowdes and Clyde Campbell, both of Elmo, who were apprehended last Saturday at Anawa, Ia., pleaded not guilty to charges of possession of intoxicating liquor in the circuit court. Their bonds were fixed at $1,000 each, which had not been given this noon. Campbell also is charged with a felony, which is filed in justice court. This charge alleges he transported intoxicating liquor.

The bogus check charge against T. E. Bock was dismissed.

Jury Is Still Out in Suit Against Railway

The jury in the damage suit of Frank Jones against the Great Western railway still was deliberating at 3 o'clock this afternoon, after having taken the case at 11 o'clock this morning.

Jones, a farmer living near Conception Junction, seeks $2,300 damages from the railway for alleged negligence to maintain a ditch from the round house, claiming that as a result the water for his dairy cattle was polutetd and his cows suffered from the effects of alleged injurious chemicals in the water.

Lindy Takes Off on Unannounced Flight

Washington, May 2.—Col. Charles A Lindbergh, flying his new Ryan monoplane, left Bolling Field, at 2:35 p. m. today, for an unannounced destination. He was accompanied by Major S. H. Robinson, former army officer, and by Robinson's brother and sister-in-law.

Quitman Bank Robber Seeks His Freedom

Application of Joe Kent to Come Before Board of Pardons and Paroles May 14.

The parole application of Joe Kent, who was sentenced by Judge John M. Dawson for a term of fifteen years in the penitentiary, will come up before the state board of pardons and paroles at its regular monthly meeting, Monday, May 14, according to a dispatch from Jefferson City. Kent was sentenced here in circuit court for the Quitman bank robbery on April 4, 1921.

The board will hear at this meeting the applications of twenty other convicts for pardons and paroles.

TO PURCHASE WATER MAIN

NEW WALKS ORDERED

Several of Brick to Be Replaced by Concrete.—City's Balance Highest in History.

The first definite step was taken last night by the city council toward the laying of a new water main from the city pumping plant to Depot street on Highway No. 18 east of Maryville.

The council passed an ordinance authorizing Mayor W. O. Garrett to purchase sufficient 12-inch cast iron pipe to lay a new main. No definite time for the work to get under way is fixed, the city waiting for the state highway department to get right-of-way deeds before being issued a permit to lay the main.

The action means, however, that the highway department is contemplating improving this stretch of road from the city limits to the 102 River Bridge this summer. The council has been notified that the department expects soon to obtain right-of-way deeds, and that it would be advisable to purchase the water mains, as a permit would be issued in the near future.

A part of the main already is laid on the city property at the pumping station and the city has some pipe on hand, but the bulk is yet to be purchased and will cost $6,319.86. The total length of the main will be 5,064 feet when completed. Mr. Garrett said a year ago this pipe would have cost $1,900 more than the present price.

Funds at Highest Point.

The funds in the city treasury have reached the highest point in the history of Maryville. The report of the mayor showed that last night there was $78,221.80 in all funds, out of which the April bills are to be paid.

The balance in the different funds: Water, $42,711.95; street fund, $5,073.56; library, $2,618.09; general, $19,287.40; first water bond, $2,089.84; street workers' guarantee, $351; street lighting, $3,757; second water bond, $2,332.96.

Mayor Garrett was instructed by the city council to notify several property owners to remove brick walks and replace them with concrete sidewalks, abutting their property. Those who are to be notified and the locations of the walks:

Mrs. Karl Malotte, 209 North Main street, in front of Price and Null grocery.

H. H. Mutz, 211 North Main street, in front of Shackelford drug store.

The residences of Walter Mutz, George Hulet, S. A. Faubion, and S. G. Massie estate, all on the north side of Ninth street between Mulberry and Walnut streets.

Considered Unsafe.

The brick walks were ordered removed because they were considered unsafe and in bad condition.

Attempt Is Made to Rob Burlington Safe

Entrance Gained by Breaking Lock on Window, but Strongbox Resists Assault.

An attempt was made last night to rifle the safe in the Burlington railway passenger station.

Employes of the railway this morning found the lock on one of the east windows broken and the dial broken off the safe. A punch had been used in trying to break the combination of the safe, but the effort proved futile.

The burglars broke into the tool house, prior to breaking into the station. They took two mauls for the purpose of getting into the railway safe.

Police believe the attempted robbery was made by amateurs. They evidently worked after 8:30 o'clock last night, as that is when the station is locked for the night, following the departure of the night train for Creston.

LIGHT RATES DOWN AGAIN

COMPANY HERE ANNOUNCES A NEW REDUCTION.

APPLIES TO ALL USERS

Charge to Start at 7½ Cents Per KWH, Instead of 8.—Reduction After First 25.

A reduction in electric light rates for Maryville was announced today by R. L. Harrison, district manager of the Maryville Electric Light and Power Co. These rate reductions have been filed and are subject to the approval of the public service commission.

The new rates are:

Residence rate service charge 50 cents per month, plus

First 25 KWH used each month, 7½ cents per KWH. The old rate was 8 cents for the first 75 KWH.

Next 25 KWH used a month, 6 cents per KWH. The old rate was 6 cents for the next 125 KWH.

Excess KWH a month 3¾ cents per KWH. The old rate was 4 cents.

Commercial rate:

Service charge 50 cents per month, plus:

First 75 KWH used a month 7½ cents per KWH.

Next 125 used a month 6 cents per KWH.

Excess KWH used a month 4 cents per KWH.

Minimum monthly bill will be the service charge.

Mr. Harrison, in speaking about the new rates, said:

"These rate reductions affect all electric light customers, the old rates starting with 8 per cent per KWH and the new rates starting with 7.5 cents per KWH. These reductions are in accordance with the company's policy to make frequent reductions, whenever conditions will warrant them, always keeping in mind the desire to furnish the best possible service to our customers. Substantial reductions were made in our rate in May, 1923; February, 1926, and November 1927; the average residence bill for 25 KWH in 1923 being $3.25 and on the new rate $2.37, a reduction of 27 per cent.

"It is the hope of the Company that further increase in the use of our service and further reduction in operating expenses will warrant other rate reductions in the near future."

Commander Dan Nee of the State Legion also will speak. Others on the program are Ed Kelso and Rev. L. B. Day, commander of the local post. Band music will be furnished. The Legion Memorial contains the city offices and an auditorium.

Bank of LaMonte Is Robbed of $1,200

La Monte, Mo., May 2.—Two bandits this morning entered the Bank of La Monte, held up the officers and fled with $1,200 in cash.

The bandits raced out of town in a motor car on U. S. highway 50. They headed west.

Within the last few weeks several banks have been robbed in this section. The most recent was in Kingsville and before that in Knobnoster.

WORTH BANK ROBBERS MAY BE IN CHICAGO

Three Men and Woman Are Held—ing of Bonds Causes Suspicion.

Cashing of Bonds Causes Susheld in Chicago as suspects of the robbery of the Bank of Worth at Worth on October 27, 1927, according to information received here today.

The woman was caught when an attempt was made by her to cash some bonds which had the numbers of the bonds of the stolen in the robbery. Information at Grant City was that the husband of this woman, a member of the gang, is an escaped convict from the Tennessee penitentiary and that he had been sent back to the penitentiary.

Charles White, a grocer at Worth, who heard the voices of the robbers back of his store in that town, will probably go to Chicago to see if he can identify the suspects. Mr. White also saw some of the men while they were hunting for a ladder.

Ross Combs, 18 years old, who was kidnaped by the robers after the robbery, said there were four men in the party. Combs was taken to Clarksdale, Mo., and locked in a box car. It was thought probably the woman might have been dressed as a man.

Making Speeches for Hoover in Indiana

Gov. Green of Michigan Predicts Democratic Victory if Hoover is Not Nominated.

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—Herbert Hoover will not be nominated at the Republican national convention by "hotel room politicians," Gov. Fred Green of Michigan told his audience at a political rally for the Secretary of Commerce here last night.

Governor Green led a visiting group of Campaign speakers, including Theodore Roosevelt and Ogden Mills of New York into the home state of Senator James E. Watson, Indiana's favorite son candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Asserting that "Republican voters alone hold the power to nominate Hoover," Governor Green predicted a Democratic victory in November if the cabinet member did not head the Republican ticket.

Superintendent at Ravenwood Elected

Eldon Steiger Retained for Another Year—Four Teachers Back.

Eldon Steiger was re-elected superintendent of schools for another year at Ravenwood at a meeting of the board of education last night. Two high school teachers and two grade teachers were elected.

Lawrence Evans and Bessie Patton were re-elected to the high school faculty. Alma Harker will continue as the teacher of the seventh and eighth grades, and Gertrude Horton, the fifth and sixth.

The board of education will hold a meeting Saturday night to elect teachers for the third and fourth and first and second grades.

Northwest C. of C. Committee Is Here

A meeting of the publicity committee of the Northwest Missouri Chamber of Commerce is being held in Maryville today to discuss plans for a book on this section of the state. The committee is composed of J. F. Hull, Maryville, Dr. F. C. Fay, Chillicothe, and W. E. Spratt, St. Joseph. Others in attendance were M. E. Selecman, Maryville, publicity manager, Marion E. Cox, St. Joseph, secretary of the district association, and P. J. Davis of Cincinnati.

Enrollment Larger for Short Course

The five weeks spring short course, which opened at the State Teachers College Monday had an enrollment of 218 at noon today, or 52 more students than attended the short course a year ago. The enrollment last year at the close of the term was 166. Several more are expected. A fee will be charged after this evening.

Henry Fords Believed to Be Started Home

London, May 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford were believed to have sailed today for the United States aboard the S. S. Majestic.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson, listed among the passengers of the giant liner which left Southampton at 11 a. m. were understood to be the Fords, who booked passage under that name when they sailed from New York.

Kellogg May Get Nobel Peace Prize

Berlin, May 2.—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg is considered in responsible diplomatic quarters as certain of being awarded the 1928 Nobel peace prize, the United Press learned today.

SMITH WINNER IN CALIFORNIA

CRUSHING DEFEAT DEALT "AL'S" TWO OPPONENTS.

REED RUNNING SECOND

New York Governor, However, Has More Votes Than Missourian and Walsh Together.

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—Gov. A. Smith, New York, retained his commanding lead for support of California Democrats, as late returns from Tuesday's Presidential primary were tabulated today.

The count from 7,349 of the 8,753 precincts in the state gave Smith, 124,140; Senator James Reed, 53,941; Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, 44,592.

The vote for Herbert Hoover in the same number of precincts totaled 520,870.

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—Administering a crushing defeat to his two opponents in the California presidential primary election, Governor Al Smith, of New York, today was pledged the support of the state's delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Thirty delegates, with a total of twenty-six votes, will go from California to the Houston convention instructed to vote for Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination as the result of his landslide victory in Tuesday's election.

The twenty-nine Republican national convention delegates will support Herbert Hoover for the presidential nomination of their party.

Hoover received a tremendous popular vote in the California primary although there was no contest for the state's delegation.

Defeat Becomes Rout.

Smith's defeat of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, and Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, became a rout as late precincts added to his lead today.

In some precincts he polled as many as five votes to one for both of his opponents.

The results from 7,040 precincts out of 8,753 in the state today gave in the Democratic race:

Hoover was given a total of 507,115 in the same number of precincts.

Every county in the state had been heard from when these figures were tabulated today and the 1,713 remaining precincts were mainly in the sparsely populated districts of the state.

6 to 1 In San Francisco.

The total San Francisco vote gave Smith 30,002; Reed 5,343; Walsh 1,791. Hoover received 65,541 votes in the 806 precincts of San Francisco county.

As early as 9 p. m. last night, Smith campaign headquarters claimed a clear-cut victory for the New York governor and today their predicted margin of victory grew steadily.

Conservative Smith enthusiasts predicted Smith's final margin would be as high as 85,000. Non-partisan observers, taking into consideration the fact that returns from rural communities in the southern part of the state might decrease the margin, predicted Smith would win by at least 50,000.

The rejection of Senator Walsh was a crushing blow to the political prestige of William G. McAdoo, himself a presidential candidate four years ago, who supported Walsh in the California primary campaign.

Home County Spurns McAdoo.

In Santa Barbara county, McAdoo's home county, the former Secretary of the Treasury's political leadership was repudiated decisively. Santa Barbara county gave Smith a two-to-one vote over Walsh and a clear majority over both.

In San Francisco county, Smith led by a margin that, in some precincts, represented a ratio of four to one against the combined vote of his two opponents.

In Los Angeles county, where the forces of McAdoo put up a strong fight for Walsh, the vote for Smith was almost equal to the total given Walsh and Reed.

Reed, in one of the upstanding upsets of the balloting, shoved Walsh into third place in Los Angeles county by a margin of more than 5,000 votes.

Carries Most of Counties.

Smith carried all but seven of the fifty-three counties reporting before midnight.

Walsh was leading in Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, and Santa Crux counties, while Reed was out ahead in Imperial, Lake and Trinity counties.

In Lake and Trinity counties Smith trailed both the other candidates.

Walsh adherents said the late vote would help the Montana Senator.

Hoover leaders were elated over the endorsement given the Secretary of Commerce.

Ed McCumber, aged Elmo resident, who was struck by a car Monday morning, is improved today.

Postal Rates Bill by Senate Today

Is Amended to Effect Reduction Estimated at $38,550,000 Annually.

Washington, May 2.—The Postal Rates bill, amended to effect a reduction estimated at $38,550,000 a year, was passed today by the Senate.

As passed by the House, it provided for a reduction estimated at $13,585,000 a year but the senate postoffice committee added $24,965,000.

The bill now goes to conference.

The House bill restored 1921 rates on second class mail, but the Senate voted a further reduction to the 1920 scale. The Senate also reduced the rate on certain third class matter from 1½c to 1c for two ounces.

FEE GOES OUT OF FARM BILL

HOUSE ACTION ON FARM BILL IS UNEXPECTED.

MAY BE VOTED BACK

Only 261 of 433 Members Present When Provision Objected to by Coolidge Is Attacked.

Washington, May 2.—Showing unexpected strength, House opponents of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill today voted the equalization fee, the heart of the measure, out of the bill.

The vote, 141 to 120, was taken in committee of the whole, and a roll call will be forced on this issue later.

The House adopted the Aswell substitute, which follows the Haugen bill except that it eliminates the equalization fee, to which President Coolidge has objected. The vote came as a complete surprise, and was followed by applause and cheering by administration supporters.

Only 261 Members Vote.

There were 261 members voting out of the 433, and Haugen bill supporters claimed the equalization fee would be reinserted on a record vote later when the measure's advocates are rounded up.

Other opponents of the bill took advantage of Aswell's victory and began a series of parliamentary maneuvers to confuse the situation. Representative Fort, Republican, New Jersey, offered an amendment to Aswell's substitute so as to strike out another section of the bill relating to marketing agreement among co-operatives.

Subsequently, Haugen bill supporters rallied their forces to defeat the Fort amendment more than two to one, 100 to 48.

Bremen Fliers Start "Circle Tour" Soon

Washington, May 2.—The German-Irish airmen of the Junkers plane Bremen plan to start a "circle tour" from New York next Wednesday. Points so far decided upon for their visit are Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Ottawa, Boston and Philadelphia, according to word at the fliers' press reception today.

Major Fitzmaurice, the Irish flier, remarked he "never wanted to see Greenly Island," the Bremen's landing place again, but said the group planned to fly back to Europe if at all possible.

As planned at present, the Bremen will be brought to the States within the next ten days and will be turned over to the fliers at some point on their tour. They will start from New York for Chicago with the Bremen's sister ship the F-13.

The fliers' plans after Philadelphia are tentative, but a more complete schedule is expected to be announced this afternoon at the German embassy.

The fliers issued a statement in which they said:

"We are deeply impressed by the wonderful reception that has been accorded us in Washington and ask you kindly to transmit our appreciation and sincere gratitude to the people of the District of Columbia."

Their statement recalled their visit to the grave of Floyd Bennett, who had sought to aid them while stranded on Greenly Island.

"We will pass his grave again today—and will feel deeply conscious of that great brotherhood which extends beyond the limits of time and the boundaries of nations."

Farmer Attacked and Bitten by Mad Skunk

Holdenville, Okla., May 2.—Tom Abercombie, farmer of Gum Springs, today was attacked and biten by a mad skunk.

Investigation by bacteriologists revealed the animal, shot and killed by Abercombie after it had attacked him in bed, was suffering an advanced stage of rabies.

HONORS FOR BREMEN CREW

COOLIDGE BESTOWS MEDALS AT WHITE HOUSE.

GREETED BY CHEERS

To National Press Club for Brief Reception.—Place Wreath on Unknown Soldier's Tomb.

Washington, May 2.—America's honors to the brave were bestowed today officially upon the Bremen's valiant crew.

President Coolidge at noon received them in the White House and presented to them distinguished flying crosses—decorations of merit given foreigners today for the first time.

Received here today by high dignitaries of this government and envoys of other nations, Baron Von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice, the Bremen crew, dashed through a morning of colorful reception which come to a climax at noon at the White House.

There, President Coolidge, greeting them happily, granted them this signal honor which hitherto had been given only a few of America's own brave fliers.

Arrive by Train.

The fliers had arrived by train early today, much to the disappointment of their flying comrades at Bolling Field. After going to the Mayflower, they proceeded to Bolling Field, where the German ambassador, the Irish minister, Secretary of State Kellogg and others, including Col. Lindbergh, welcomed them. Secretary of State Kellogg spoke briefly a greeting and a recognition of their valor; and said their exploit had served anew to shorten the distances between the nations.

From the field, they returned under cavalry escort to their hotel for a press conference, in which they announced plans for a westward flight, visiting Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Ottawa and Philadelphia, before—as they now plan—flying back to Europe.

Then at noon came the supreme moment of their day.

They were escorted to the President's business offices in the White House and introduced to the chief executive by Col. Latrobe, his military aide. Thousands crowded in the vicinity of the White House to glimpse the men who had flown the Bremen from Ireland to lonely Greenly Island.

Greeted by Cheers.

Cheers and handclapping greeted them anew.

From the business offices, the party adjourned to the south lawn of the vast White House grounds, and there the President presented the crosses which had been hurried here from Philadelphia by plane.

The citations, with names altered to correspond to the recipients, said:

"The Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement in participating in aerial flight. Captain Koehl, with his two companions, April 12-13, 1928, by their exceptional skill and resourcefulness succeeded in making the first westward non-stop transatlantic flight by airplane from Europe to North America."

From the White House, the fliers, again besieged by welcomers who sought to shake their hands, proceeded to the National Press Club for a brief reception and then returned to the White House for luncheon as the President's guests.

Leave Wreaths.

The fliers placed wreaths on the tomb of the unknown soldier shortly before 2:30 p. m. The three airmen appeared from the amphitheater flanked by Ambassador Von Pirttwitz and Minister Smiddy. Behind them rode two American soldiers each carrying a large wreath. The green of the entwined leaves formed a background on one wreath for the black, red and gold colors of Germany and on the other wreath were the yellow, white, and green colors of the Irish Free State.

Received by Senate.

The Senate took a 10-minute recess at 3:30 p. m. on motion of Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader to receive the fliers. Vice President Dawes, Curtis and Senator Robinson, Democratic

CLEAN UP

This is the time of year to clean up, paint up and brighten up generally. When nature comes out of her winter quarters, she comes arrayed in new finery and fresh colors. It is natural and proper that people should follow the lesson of nature.

But it isn't a matter of pride and appearance altogether. It is essential to safety as well as good looks. Fire traps should not be tolerated anywhere and trash piles should be promptly removed in the interest of safety as well as neatness and beauty. And the burning of trash should be done with care and at times when the winds are not high. One never can tell what may happen when flames get beyond control.

So, let's clean up and brighten up and show the world we are conscious of appearances and the opportunity to improve and beautify our homes. It is half of life to live decently and in order.

A CURE FOR COAL ILLS.

The condition of bituminous coal miners in this country is pitiable, especially in the union districts where so many mines stand idle. Yet in one way the miners have an advantage over the operators. Mining labor is above ground, and can move. Capital invested in those mines cannot move.

Both labor and capital in this industry must suffer more before improvement comes. Superfluous labor and superfluous capital must be eliminated.

It won't do to raise the price of coal artificially, to supply adequate profit for all the capital and decent wages for all the labor, when there is nearly twice as much of both as there ought to be. The only soundly economic thing to do is to operate the coal industry, like other industries, on a basis of efficinecy.

That means low cost of production. It means working the lowest-cost mines and leaving out the high-cost mines. It seems cruel; economic law is often cruel at the moment, but just and therefore merciful in the long run. The industry, the public and the government will have to acknowledge the economic law and adapt themselves to it in the long run, anyway. The sooner the operation is accomplished, the quicker the patient will recover.

Organization within the industry will help this. Voluntary closing of high-cost mines by operators and voluntary desertion of the coal industry by unemployed miners will help. The government can probably do little more than give good advice.

Public control, if it ever comes, will be drastic, and probably work by compulsion along the lines suggested.

What Other Editors Say

HELPING YOUR TOWN.

If every man and woman in the community would give just one hour of time and earnest effort to the Chamber of Commerce each week, it would become a wonderful power for good in the town. Now is the time to begin. Do you care for your investments and associations in the town? Then get in and help to improve them by working harmoniously with our whole citizenship in the Chamber of Commerce. If it succeeds, it will be because you helped make it succeed. If it fails, it will be because you lie down on the job and "Let George do it." Get in now and do your bit.—Tipton Times.

CHARGING EXPENSES TO JOHN JONES.

Former Gov. Gardner made a speech at the Missouri Democratic State Convention at St. Joseph recently devoted largely to eulogizing Senator Reed. The senator's nomination for the presidency was urged in the interest of efficient and honest government, for which everyone knows Reed stands. However, we note that this same speech of Mr. Gardner's is now being circulated as a campaign document printed at the taxpayers' expense. It appears in the Congressional Record, mailed in a government envelope which carries the legend in one corner, "James A. Reed, Missouri's Choice for President," and is being carried through the mails postage free under Representative Dickinson's frank. It was Mr. Dickinson who, according to the Record, obtained leave to have the speech officially printed.

Other presidential aspirants, it is to be presumed, are doing the same thing. Not all, perhaps, are preaching the doctrine of efficient government quite so persistently as Senator Reed. Here is a simple way in which that doctrine can be applied. Paper and printing cost the government an enormous sum. The Postoffice Department has a deficit caused, it is stated, to a large extent by the abuse of the franking privilege. One of the best guarantees that a party and a candidate will be economical in large matters if entrusted with public office, is their economy in small things. It is an old custom to load the mails in campaign time with campaign matter printed and carried at government expense, which means the taxpayers. Isn't it about time some candidate started a reform in that direction also?.—St. Louis Star.

Italian Dirigible May Start in 24 Hours

Stolp, Germany, May 2.—Provided high winds abate, the flight of the Italian Polar dirigible, Italia, from Stolp to Kingsbay, Spitzbergen, probably will be made in twenty-four hours, it was announced today.

Commander Umberto Nobile had intended to leave about 4 a. m., today. He went to the hangars on the edge of the city with members of his staff and crew and received weather reports that said winds of cyclonic proportions were blowing over the course the Italia would have to take.

Nobile remained at the hangers until 1 a. m., and then returned to the hotel here, announcing postponement of the flight for at least 24 hours.

New walks also will be ordered laid by John Shonley, at the northwest corner of Second and Davis street; and by Ozie Schoolen, on the east side of Buchanan at Eighth street.

A bacteriological examination of water samples collected by J. W. Qualls, superintendent of the water department, was reported by H. D. Peters, acting chief engineer of the State Board of Health. The samples were collected April 23.

The report showed that the water taken from the storage lake, which is pumped directly from the river, had ten B. Coli and was reported as slightly contaminated." But samples taken from the clear well, from the tap at the power house of the State Teachers College and the tap at the Franklin schoolhouse, all were satisfactory, having no B. Coli.

Four cases came up in police court during the month, Judge Joseph H. Sayler reported to the city council. Two were for disturbance of the peace, one for drunkenness and one for speeding. Fines assessed totaled $35.

Five Fires in April.

There were five fires during April, Fire Chief Claud Stults reported. The fire department payroll amounted to $92.50. The fires were on April 3, at the G. M. C. lunch room, north side of the square, damage, $2,000, cause unknown; April 17, Charles Hyslop, 322 North Fillmore, no damage; April 17, Standard Oil Company filling station Buchanan and Fourth streets, no damage; April 19, Mrs. T. M. Trullinger, 132 Grand avenue, roof fire, damage $25; April 23, Vincent Quinn, 621 South Buchanan street, roof fire, damage, $25.

Mr. Stults, who also is weighmaster, reported collections of $10.20 from the city scales.

Permits were granted to Sam Bithos to construct four windows on the south side of 214 North Main street, the Superior Cleaning company, approximate cost $100; to Mrs. R. C. Person to plant two Sweedler maple trees in the parkway at 203 West Seventh street; and to C. E. Myers to erect a wooden sign, 2 by 20 feet, flat against the building at 304 North main street, where the A. and P. store is located.

The library report of Miss Grace Langan, librarian, showed that 1,938 books and magazines were loaned last month. Of this number 710 were juvenile books, 1,121 general books and 107 magazines. Twenty-six readers' cards were issued, 1,163 persons used the reading rooms and collections totaled $16.97.

CURTIS' STORY READS LIKE FICTION

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the 21st in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for Democrat-Forum and Maryville Tribune and Nea Service by Robert Talley, tells the story of Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas. Tomorrow's article will discuss Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, May 2.—The combined imaginations of Zane Grey and Horatio Alger never pictured a more colorful career than that of Senator Charles Curtis, the dominant but silent figure who serves as Republican leader in the Senate.

In youth an Indian boy on a government reservation, at 10 a jockey riding horses on Kansas race tracks, at 15 a news "butch" at railway depots, at 17 a hack driver in Topeka, at 21 a self-educated lawyer, at 25 a beardless prosecutor in Shawnee county, at 32 a congressman, at 47 a senator—now Curtis seeks to climax his 32 years in Washington by being elected president. He was the first candidate to announce, having entered the race last October 26.

Senator Curtis is 68, the oldest of all the candidates. His hair and mustache, until recent years coal black, are just beginning to turn gray. He is of medium height, round and solid of figure, wears wrinkled and baggy clothes, does not try to pose as a statesman and is willing for people to take him at his own worth. He is a Methodist and a strong prohibitionist.

As the Senate's majority leader, Curtis is the man behind the legislative gun. It is his role to keep the wheels of legislation oiled, to put through the measures that the White House desires, to line up the necessary votes and have them ready when the time comes, to know the position of every senator on every question, to advise the president when something is hopeless so it will not be attempted with resultant failure.

Senator Curtis, chosen to succeed the cultured and scholarly Senator Henry Cabot Lodge as majority leader of the Senate when the latter died in 1924, was born on an Indian allotment farm in Kansas and spent part of his boyhood in the tepees of the Kaw tribe.

His great-great-great grandfather was Chief Pawhuskie of the Osages. Three generations ago, Princess White Plume, the chief's granddaughter, married a French trader and trapper named Conville. Their daughter, Julie Conville, was Senator Curtis' grandmother, being the wife of Louis Pappan, another French trader. Ellen Pappan (daughter of Louis Pappan and Julie Conville) was Senator Curtis' mother. She married Capt. Orrin A. Curtis, who had moved to Kansas from Indiana. And so, on Grandmother Julie Pappan's Indian allotment farm near Topeka, the future senator was born on Jan. 25, 1860.

In 1868, when Curtis was eight years old, a band of roving and war-like Cheyennes attacked and surrounded the reservation of the friendly Kaws. Because he could speak both English and Indian, young Curtis was chosen to slip from camp under cover of darkness and made his way to the military post at Topeka for aid. The Kaws' horses had been captured, so Curtis made the 60-mile trip on foot in less than two days. The cavalry came and chased the Cheyennes away.

But Curtis did not go back. Born to the saddle, he got a job as a jockey at Topeka and was riding in races by the time he was nine years old. He toured a large part of the west and on one occasion, it is related, Jesse and Frank James held up and robbed the box office at the race track where he was riding. In the winters he attended the public schools, living with his father's people in Topeka.

Increasing weight finally forced Curtis out of the jockey game, so he returned again to the Indians. The Kaws, traveling west, were camped six miles out of Topeka. To Grandmother Julie Pappan's tepee he went, prepared to re-join the tribe. But Grandmother Julie was wise; she wanted her daughter's child to grow up to be a white man, not a roving Indian. So she persuaded young Curtis to return to Topeka and try to get an education.

Back in Topeka young Curtis sold fruit and candy at the railway station and worked in stores while finishing his schooling. He lived with his paternal grandmother, Parmelia Curtis, who likewise encouraged him to get an education.

As Curtis grew older he felt the need of more income. Knowing horses, he naturally applied to a livery stable owner. The latter gave him a job as a hack driver. Then he began the study of law, often reading his textbooks by the oil lamps on his hack while waiting for a fare. Impressed by the youth's determination to get ahead, a veteran Topeka attorney took him into his office.

At 21, Curtis was admitted to the bar. When he was 25 (in 1885) he was elected prosecuting attorney. Kansas already had a prohibition law, but nobody paid any attention to it. Curtis, however, considered it his duty to enforce it. He closed every saloon in Topeka in 30 days and kept them closed throughout his four-year term. He has been a strong prohibitionist ever since.

In 1892 Curtis was elected to Congress. He served seven terms there and in 1907 he was elected to the Senate. In 1912 he was beaten, but he came back in 1914 and has been in the Senate continuously since that time.

Tomorrow: Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

Sinclair Linked With Salt Creek Oil Lease

Telegram Introduced by Teapot Committee to Show Sinclair Urged Leases Be Held Up.

Washington, May 2.—Evidence purporting to show a connection between Harry Sinclair and former Secretary of Interior Fall in connection with 1922 government leases in Salt Creek, Wyo., was introduced by Chairman Nye, of the Senate Teapot Dome committee today when Sinclair again was called to the stand.

Sinclair denied he had any connection with the Fall telegram or that he controlled production in the rich Salt Creek field.

"I don't know anything about that telegram," he said.

Nye produced a telegram from Fall to E. C. Finney, his assistant in the Interior department, urging that bids for Salt Creek leases secretly be held up for a month and a half.

Nye also brought out that the telegram was sent after Sinclair had visited Fall at the Fall ranch in New Mexico. Sinclair's bid was not made until after the telegrom, Nye said:

Sinclair later got the leases.

Senator Walsh of Montana informed Sinclair that his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, had told the jury in the recent conspiracy trial here that Sinclair never received any Continental Trading Company bonds.

Sinclair said he did not know the bonds were Continental bonds when he received them.

Tiny Tots Form an Orchestra, Entertain College Students

The curtains of the auditorium at the State Teachers College were drawn apart this morning at assembly to reveal an orchestra composed of what seemed to be Lilliputians or other mythical midgets, all uniformed and equipped with instruments for concert.

The effect was so striking that the assembled students gasped audibly.

The pause was not long, however, for soon little Kenneth Tebow snappily stepped to the front, assumed the demeanor of director, and announced the opening number, "The Blue Danube Waltz," by Strauss. Raising his arms in masterly fashion, he brought them down, and the orchestra came in with the beat. Vigorously directing the leads with his right hand, in which he held a baton, and now and then skillfully bringing in his basses and soloists with the left he demonstrated what a real master can do with a group of fifty-three children, none farther in school than the second grade.

The young director was attired in evening suit, with swallow-tail coat and other "necessaries," while the rest of the band was uniformed in white, the boys having tight fitting coats with dark braid facing the opening in the front.

Ten Instruments Used.

Ten different instruments were used. Among these was a phonograph to the right of the stage. Other instruments were bells, triangles, bird whistles, sand blocks, symbols, drum, wood drum, tambourines, and rhythm sticks.

With the closing of the first selection, the director again came to the front and acknowledged the enthusiastic outburst from the audience. He announced the second number, "Pouerette," by Finke ,and proceeded to bring his musicians into play without further ceremony. When this was finished, a second ovation was given the entertainers, surpassing any reception on the part of the student body this year.

By way of explanation it can be said that the entertainers were from the Garfield ward school in south Maryville. Miss Vada Cliser, senior at the State Teachers College and supervisor of music at Garfield, is manager of the troupe. She is assisted by Mrs. B. F. Condon and Mrs. E. T. Dale.

Develops Appreciation.

This manner of teaching music appreciation is new in Maryville, Miss Cliser said. The aim of the project is to develop music appreciation, rhythm, and to cause a desire for further "prowess" in musical lines.

This strange array of entertainers will appear again tomorrow night as one of the numbers at the ward school entertainment at the Maryville high school, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association.

The names of the musicians and what they play are:

Rhythm sticks, Dickie Burdick, Melvin Cook, Thomas Hopp, Vincent Hoskins, Billy Leibig, Jimmie Montgomery, Duncan Wells, Richard Wiles, Clarence Clark, Max Adams, Jimmie Cook, Pearl Branson, Betty Joe Canon, Mary Ellen Hamilton, Lawrence Mayland, Lynn Summers, William Dewar, Charles Moore, Dorine Antrim, Lucy Piveral, Edna Reynolds, Donald Trullinger, Marion Davis, Etta Marie Hagee:

Bells: Marjorie Wray, Eldon Wohlford, Betty Jane Tarpley, Mary M. Phares, Lucile Davis, Janice Canon, Emma I. Brown, J. L. Coffey.

Bird whistles: Preston Nevens, Harold Morton, Jimmie Bennett, Charles Strong, Beverly Carpenter, Herman Millikan.

Sand blocks: Betty Alice Hosmer, Barbara Leet, Evelyn Gore, Betty Jean Todd.

M. H. S. FIELD DAY SUCCESS

STUDENTS AND FACULTY ROMP ON McNEAL FARM.

JUNIORS WIN TROPHY

Outing This Year Well Organized.—Annual Staff Gets Profit on Sale of Refreshments.

The McNeal farm, north of Maryville, was the scene of a successful field day yesterday for the students and faculty of Maryville high school, but it proved a success most of all for the junior class. Scoring more points in games than any of the other three classes, the juniors will be awarded a silver trophy.

The outing this year was probably the best organized field day for the local school. Students were appointed to participate in competitive games, with a silver trophy as a goal. The cup will be an incentive toward organized play in the future field days.

Yes, there was plenty to eat. The "Maryvillian" staff knows that. And there were no left-overs." The staff, in addition to the fun, realized a profit that will add a "neat sum" toward publication of the annual.

Unlike most school days, every student reported at the school building at the exact time, and transportation awaited them. Overalls, unionalls, old jackets, sweaters, and khaki were the common dress among both students and faculty members.

The members of the faculty brought their own lunches with them to the grounds and had a faculty picnic.

The Junior class made a score of 35½, while the senior class was its closest rival with a score of 34½. The freshmen made 25, and the sophomores a half point more.

The following are the points made by classes:

Two Couples Wed 51 Years Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gallagher and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Airy to Observe Anniversaries.

Tomorrow marks the fifty-first wedding anniversary for two Maryville couples—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Airy and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gallagher.

Mr. Airy was married to Miss Mary Wachtel at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Watchtel, in Andrew county. They have been residents of Nodaway County since their marriage.

Mr. Airy was born in Fillmore, Andrew County, in 1854, and his bride of '78 was born in Andrew County in 1859.

Mr. and Mrs. Airy have four children, Emery Airy, Maryville; Guy Airy, Dripping Springs, Okla.; Oren Airy, Omaha, and Miss Lucille Airy, an instructor in the South High School of Omaha.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will pass their anniversary quietly tomorrow at the home of their daughter, Mrs. A. C. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher are natives of Ireland and they were married in Parish Kilcarl, County Donegal, Ulster, Ireland. Five of their children were born in Ireland.

The couple came to Nodaway county forty-three years ago. They came here directly from New York, where they landed. A brother-in-law of Mr. Gallegher, Peter Hamill, was located here at that time.

The couple have six children living: John Gallagher, six miles east of Maryville; Mrs. Peter Myers, east of Maryville; Mrs. A. C. Thompson, Maryville; Peter Gallagher, William Gallagher and Frank Gallagher, Houston, Texas. Patrick and Charles Gallagher are dead and another child died in infancy. There are fifteen grandchildren.

For six years Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher lived in Stanberry. Mr. Gallagher has been a farmer and also has been a traveling salesman since coming to this country.

Two Market Cattle and Another Hogs

George Huff, Nodaway county, sold forty-seven steers on the St. Joseph market yesterday at $12. They weighed 955 pounds. Persons From Here Attend Consecration

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Brady and son, Harold, Miss Annie Kimple and Miss Mary Davis attended the consecration of a bishop when Father Francis Johannes became the Rt. Rev. Johannes, D. D., coadjutor bishop of the diocese of Leavenworth, at St. Joseph's Cathedral in St. Joseph yesterday.

The ceremony, they said, was carried out with all the splendor of the ritual of the Middle Ages before an archbishop, a dozen bishops, that many monsignors, more than 150 priests and a cathedral jammed to the very doors with men and women. Hundreds were unable to gain admittance.

Hedge Ban Doesn't Apply to Shade Tree

Jefferson City, Mo., May 2.—The statute requiring that hedge fences along the public road be cut down to a height of five feet, does not include an occasional shade tree growing along the roadside, Attorney General North T. Gentry ruled in a recent opinion. The statute was intended to encourage planting of trees along the side of roads, he said.

CAPITAL HAS FLOOD THREAT

DISASTROUS RISE IN POTOMAC RIVER IS FEARED.

MELTING SNOW CAUSE

Workers With Sandbags Expected to Prevent Repetition of Inundation of 1889.

Washington, May 2.—Washington today had a flood fighting army ready to repel with sandbag dykes and sewer gate reinforcements a threatened disastrous rise in the Potomac river.

The weather bureau reported that 35 inches of snow in the mountains near Cumberland, Md., may be melted quickly by the first warm rain, and that the resultant flood in the river may equal or exceed that of 1889, which overspread the capital's Mall and Pennsylvania avenue, and almost reached the White House.

A rapid rise was reported all along the river today. The weather bureau bulletined every two hours the changing conditions. Army engineers, public parks and buildings chiefs, and the District of Columbia sewer and highway departments were available at a moment's notice, and maps were drawn to indicate where flood defense was necessary.

A sudden melting of the snows would give Washington only twenty-four hours to prepare necessary dykes, but these could be thrown up at vital points in seven hours, it was said.

If the warning comes, workmen will construct a sandbag embankment from the Lincoln memorial mound to the Washington monument, a similar wall across low-lying P street, near which the President's yacht Mayflower moors, and a third dyke across Potomac Park to save at least part of that scenic peninsula.

Stop Lights Curb Methodist Oratory

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—The flow of oratory, like traffic, is being regulated by red and green lights at the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church here.

A green lamp and a red lamp at the speaker's table, out of sight of the audience, have been installed.

As the time limit for the speaker approaches, the presiding officer informs him of the fact by lighting the green light, on which will appear the inscription, "speed up, brother, you have only one minute left."

A minute later, the red light flashes telling the orator, "your time is up, brother. Make way for another."

2098 Accidents on Highways This Year

In First Three Months, 61 Persons Have Been Killed Instantly, 67 Dying Later.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 2.—A total of 2098 automobile accidents on Missouri highways during the first quarter of 1928 resulted in 1930 casualties, according to statistics compiled by the Missouri State Highway Department.

Sixty-one persons were killed instantly, 67 died as a result of injuries and 1852 were injured, the report stated. A total of 3,086 automobiles were involved in the accidents.

Careless drivers were charged with being responsible for 293 accidents, speeding with 108, street intersections with 453 and intoxicated drivers with 84.

Will Campaign for Control of Cancer

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—County chairmen in 92 Missouri counties have been appointed to co-operate in the national campaign of the American Society for the Control of Cancer to be conducted May 13 to 20.

New York's Welcome to Bremen Flyers

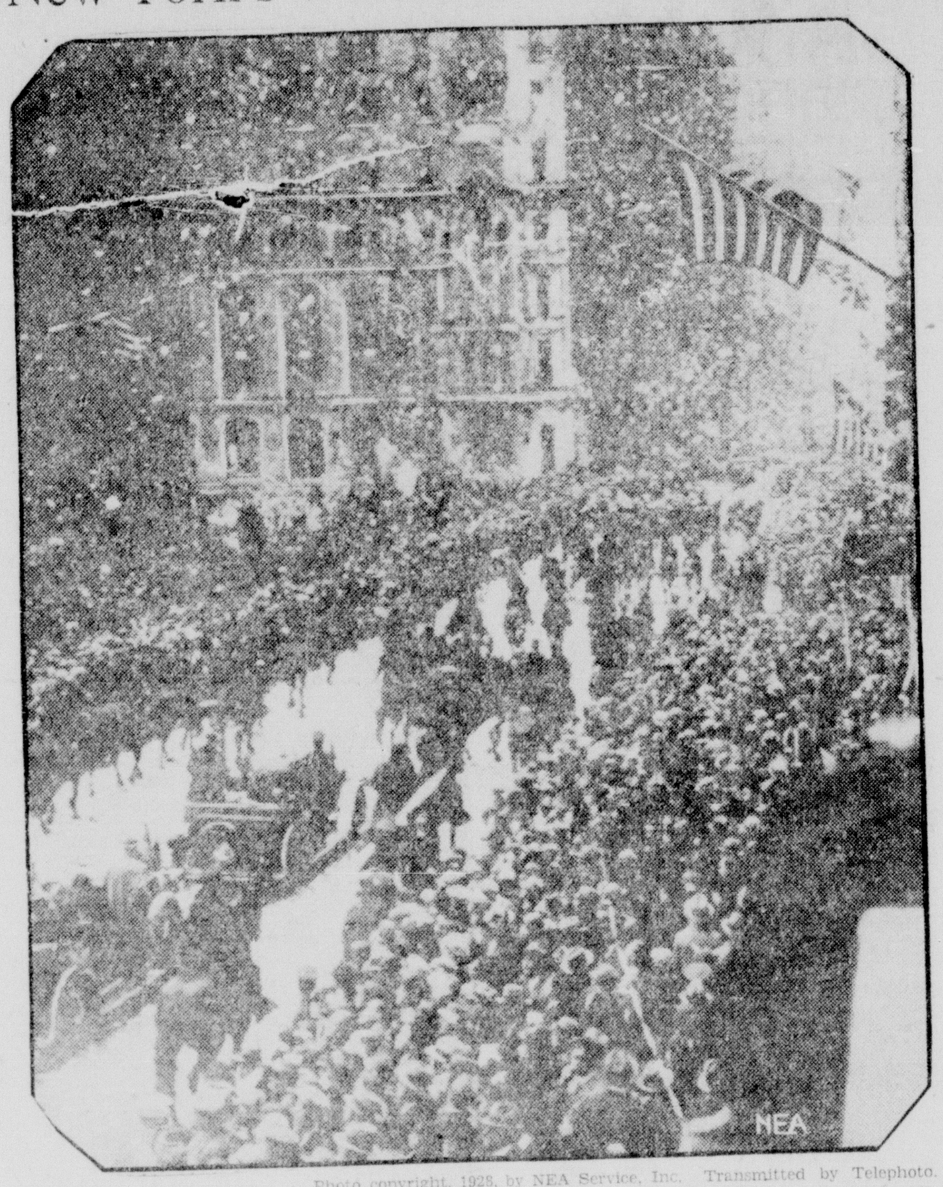

Photo copyright, 1928, by NEA Service, Inc. Transmitted by Telephoto.

Along the same route taken by General Pershing upon his triumphal return from France nine years ago, two former German soldiers and an Irishman paraded up Broadway to the resounding cheers of hundreds of thousands in New York. Ten thousand New York policemen fought to hold back the mobs, which lined the route for miles, as bands played German and Irish airs in honor of Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Commandant Fitzmaurice. The head of the parade is shown here, passing through the sky-scraper canyons of Broadway amid a "snowstorm" of confetti and torn paper, tossed from upper windows in honor of the daring crew of the transatlantic airplane Bremen. Police said it was the wildest reception since that of Lindbergh upon his return from Paris.

SEES GAIN IN FARM PROFITS

SECRETARY JARDINE CITES OWN LAND AS PROOF.

WOULDN'T TRADE IT

Told by Chicago Banker That His Associates Consider Investment Profitable Now.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—Increased interest in land as an investment shows the progress agriculture is making.

Dr. William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, in Kansas City to address the rural work of the Methodist conference, arrived with a fresh optimism over the possibilities in farming.

Himself a farmer, operating 220 acres near Manhattan, Kas., the secretary of agriculture held land values superior to bond investments.

"I wouldn't sell my farm for the price I paid for it in order to put the money in bonds," he said.

"You know one can always make a living out of a farm, when he couldn't out of the same capital investment in 4 per cent bonds."

Dr. Jardine then explained his farm produced last season sixty bushels of corn to the acre, twenty-eight bushels of wheat, good alfalfa and livestock made satisfactory returns.

The tenant not only was able to maintain a large family in a comfortable way, but also had a satisfactory net cash balance at the year's end, Dr. Jardine said.

Emphasizing his point regarding the value of farm lands as an investment, Secretary Jardine called attention to the fact bankers, usually the most conservative of investors, were putting money into farm lands. He quoted an executive of a large Chicago bank, a fellow passenger on the trip to Kansas City, as saying his associates were buying farm lands and considered land within a reasonable distance of Chicago as a good investment at prevailing prices.

Babe Ruth One Behind 1927 Home Run Record

Washington, May 2.—Babe Ruth is one behind his 1927 home run schedule, having made Nos. 5 and 6 last year on May 1. However, he did not get No. 7 until May 10, 1927, which gives him eight days to hit another circuit drive and tie his 1927 record, in which he finished with 60 homers.

Ruth hit No. 5 yesterday off Fred Marberry, making his fourth homer this season against Washington.

Bird-Like Flight Is Dream of Inventor

Soon Will Try Invention Which Resembles Huge Transparent Bird.

St. Augustine, Fla., May 2.—George R. White, Long Island inventor, who for six years has devoted himself to research into the problem of approximating mechanically the flight of birds, soon will attempt here to make the first successful bird-like flight in history.

White, a flying instructor during the war and a former technology student, will make his tests in a machine characterized as a foot-propelled, wing-flaping, motorless ornithopter.

The invention resembles a huge, transparent bird whose skeleton of strong chrome molybdenum is revealed through its glossy coating of tough, non-inflammable celluloid. It has a wing spread of 29½ feet.

Minor Success Last Autumn

The new machine is an improved model of the one in which White was reported last September to have flown eight-tenths of a mile. At that time, during a test at Cocoa Beach, Fla., White was towed by an automobile at a speed of 22 miles an hour to a flying start. Once in the air he maintained a speed, he claims, of 30 miles an hour.

White will conduct his experiments here from the beach which is a broad, level expanse, on the theory that a take-off in a hilly country would inspire doubt as to what extent elevation contributed to the flight.

It is necessary to give the contrivance a start to get it into the air.

Fred Seckington was a St. Joseph visitor today.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

When she is four years old SALLY FORD is left at the state orphanage by a woman who says she is the child's mother but who disappears without again inquiring for the child. The summer she is 16, Sally is "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON, a farmer who has the reputation of being a harsh and unrelenting task master. There she meets DAVID NASH, handsome young student who is working on the Carson farm for the summer, preparing himself to inherit his grandfather's many acres which adjoin the Carson place.

David likes Sally and this arouses the anger of Pearl, Carson's daughter. Clem orders Sally to have nothing to do with David, saying he and Pearl are practically engaged. She disregards his warning, however.

The next day the women-folk leave Sally alone on the farm with Clem and David. When her work is done she goes to her room, but David's voice calls to her and she innocently goes into his room for a moment to see his books on farming. The wind blows the door shut. They are suddenly frightened by Clem's face peering at them through the little attic window. His evil remarks so infuriate David that he strikes Clem, sending him crashing to the ground. David tells Sally they must run away, and tells her to meet him in the orchard in a few minutes. He telephones for a doctor to come to Clem's aid, then meets the girl. He says: "I've been thinking hard, honey. I'll take you back to the Home."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 12

"No, David, no, no! I can't go back to the orphanage! I'd rather die!" Sally gasped.

David dropped his bundle, took her hands and held them tightly. "I can't run away from this thing I've done, Sally. I'm sorry. I thought I could. I'm going to give myself up, after I've seen you safely back in the Home. I'll explain to your Mrs. Stone, make her believe—"

"Oh!" Sally breather on a gust of despair. Then, stooping swiftly, she snatched up her bundle and began to run down a corn row. She ran with the fleetness of a terror-stricken animal, and David watched her for a long moment, his eyes dark with pity and uncertainty. Then he gave chase, his long legs clearing the distance between them with miraculous speed. He caught up with her just as she was at the edge of the corn field, recklessly about to plunge into the lane that led to the Carson house.

"Wait, Sally!" he panted, grasping her shoulder. "You can't run away alone like this—Oh Lord!" he groaned suddenly. "There they come! Don't you hear the car turning in from the road? Come back, Sally!"

He did not wait for her to obey, but lifted her into his arms, for she had gone limp with terror, and ran, crouching low so that the corn stalks would hide them.

"Lie flat on the ground," David said sternly, as he set her gently upon her feet. "We can't leave here now. The place will be swarming with people. But when it's dark we'll slip away, across fields. Thank God, there'll be no moon."

He flattened his own body upon the soft earth, close against the thick, sturdy corn stalks. They did not talk very much for they were listening for faint sounds coming from the farmhouse which would indicate that the dreadful discovery had been made.

Long minutes passed and nothing had happened. Then the muffled roar of another motor, turning into the lane from the state highway, told them that the doctor to whom David had telephoned was arriving. It seemed hours before a scream floated from the house to the cornfield.

"Pearl!" Sally whispered, shivering. "They hadn't found him. The doctor told them. Oh, David!"

His hand tightened so hard upon hers that she winced. A little latter they heard Mrs. Carson's harsh voice calling, calling—"Sally! Sallee! Sally Ford!"

Sally bowed her head upon David's hand then, and wept a little, shuddering. "She was—good to me. She—she liked me, David. Oh, I hope she'll know I didn't mean her any harm, ever!"

The next hour, during which the sun set and twilight settled like a soft gray dust upon the cornfield, passed somehow. Several cars arrived; men's voices shouted unintelligible words. Twice Pearl screamed—

But no one came down the corn rows looking for them. "They won't dream we're still so near the house," David assured her in his low, comforting voice.

When it was quite dark David spoke again: "We'll make a break for it now, Sally. I know this part of the country well. My grandfather's farm adjoins this one, with only a fence between the two hay meadows. We can cut across his farm, giving the house and barns a wide berth. Then we'll strike a bit of timberland that belongs to old man Cosgrove. That will bring us out on a little-traveled road that leads to Stanton, 22 miles away. Think you can make it, Sally?"

She hugged her bundle tight to her breast and reached for his hand, which he had withdrawn as he rose to his feet. "Of course," she answered simply. "I'm not afraid, David."

"You're a plucky kid," David said gruffly. "I'll lead the way. Let me know if I set too fast a pace."

Buoyed up by his praise, Sally trotted almost happily at his heels. She refused to let her mind dwell on the horrors of the day, or to reach out into the future. Indeed, her imagination was incapable of picturing a future for a Sally Ford whose life was not regulated by orphanage routine. She held only the present fast in her mind, passionately grateful for the strong, swiftly striding figure before her, unwilling for this strange nighttime adventure to end.

"Thirsty, Sally!" David's low voice called out of the darkness of the woods.

Suddenly she knew that she was both thirsty and hungry, for she had not eaten since the 12 o'clock dinner. A cool breeze was rustling the leaves of the trees, and under that whispering rustle came the cool, sweet murmur of a brook. She crouched beside David on the bank of the tiny stream and thirstily drank from his cupped hands. Then he dipped his handkerchief in the water and gently swabbed her face, his hands as tender as Sally had fancied a mother's must be.

The going was more dogged, less mysteriously thrilling when they had at last reached the dirt road that was eventually to lead them to Stanton, a town of four or five thousand inhabitants, the town in which the woman who had brought her 12 years ago to the orphanage had lived. Days before Sally had memorized the address before destroying the bit of paper on which Miss Pond, out of the kindness of her heart, had copied Sally's record from the orphanage files.

Half a dozen times during the apparently interminable trudge toward Stanton David abruptly called a halt, drawing Sally off the road and over reeling, drunken-looking fences into meadows or fields for a terribly needed rest. Once, with his head in her lap, her fingers smoothing his crisp chestnut curls from his sweat-moistened brow, he went to sleep, and she knew that she would not have awakened him even to save herself from the orphanage.

Dawn was bedecking the east with tattered pink banners when the boy and girl, staggering with weariness and faint with hunger, caught their first glimpse of Stanton, a pretty little town snugly asleep in the hush that belongs peculiarly to early Sunday morning. Only the dutiful crowing of backyard roosters and the occasional baying of a hound broke the stillness.

"We've got to have food," David said abruptly, as they hesitated forlornly on the outskirts of the little town. "And yet I suppose the alarm has been given and the constables are on the look-out for us. We might stop at a house that has no telephone—they wouldn't be likely to have heard about Carson—but I don't like to arouse anyone this early on Sunday morning. There's an eating house next to the station that stays open all night, to serve train crews and passengers, but more than likely the station agent has been told to keep a lookout for us."

As he spoke a train whistled shrilly. The two wayfarers stood not a hundred yards from the railroad tracks where they crossed the dirt road. Sally instinctively turned to flee, but David restrained her.

"We can't hide from everyone, Sally," he said gently. "I think our best bet is to act as if we had nothing to hide. Remember, we've done no wrong. If Carson is dead, he brought his death upon himself. He deserved what he got."

Trustingly, Sally gave him her hand, stood very small and erect beside him as the big engine thundered down the tracks toward them. Her face was white and drawn with fatigue but her eyes managed a smile for David. His did not receive and reflect that brave smile, for they were fixed upon the oncoming train.

"By George, Sally, it's a carnival train! Look! 'Bybee's Bigger and Better Show.' I'd forgotten the carnival was coming. Look over there! There's one of their signs!"

An enormous poster, pasted upon a billboard, showed a nine-foot giant and a 30-inch dwarf, the little man, smoking a huge cigar, seated cockily in the palm of the giant's vast hand. Big red type below the picture announced: "Bybee's Bigger and Better Show—Stanton June 9 and 10. One hundred performers, largest menagerie in any carnival on the road today."

"I suppose they're going to spend Sunday here," David remarked. Then he turned toward Sally, beheld the miracle of her transformed face. "Why, child, you want to go to the carnival, don't you? Poor little Sally!"

His voice was so tender, so whimsical, so sympathetic, that tears filmed over the brilliance of her sapphire eyes. "I went to a circus once," she said with the eager breathlessness of a child. "The governor—he was running for office again—sent tickets for all the orphans. And, oh it was wonderful, David! We all planned to run away from the orphanage and join the circus. We talked about it for weeks, but—we didn't run away. The girls didn't, I mean, but one of the big boys at the orphanage did and Ruby Presser, the girl he was sweet on, got a postcard from him from New York when the circus was in winter quarters. His name was Eddie Cobb and—oh, the train's stopping, David. Look!"

"Yes." David shaded his eyes and squinted down the railroad track. "This is a spur of the main road, a siding, they call it. I suppose the carnival cars will stay here today—"

But for once Sally was not listening to him. She was running toward the cars, from which the engine had been uncoupled, and as she ran she called shrilly, joyously, to a young man who had dropped catlike from the top of a car to the ground:

"Eddie! Eddie Cobb! Eddie!"

floor leader, met the fliers in an ante chamber and escorted them into the Senate.

The fliers stood at the front of the chamber before the Vice-President's rostrum, and each senator stood in line to shake their hands.

After the brief Senate reception the fliers were then escorted by the German ambassador to the House of Representatives.

Lindbergh at Field.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was among those at the field. High government officials, frock-coated and silk hatted, were on hand to bid the Germans and their Irish colleague, "willkommen"—welcome. Artillery salutes boomed out over the Potomac.

The German ambassador, the Irish minister, army officers of high station, members of the President's cabinet and of the "Little Cabinet" attended the Bolling Field greeting. The Bremen trio, foresaking for a time their air course, arrived in Washington early this afternoon, went to the Mayflower briefly, and then departed for Bolling Field.

It was their second visit to the Capital since arriving in America from their icy refuge, Greenly Island. Last week-end they came here to pay tribute to Floyd Bennett, who died of pneumonia contracted on his rescue flight in their aid.

The trio arrived at the Bolling reviewing stand shortly after 10 o'clock. They approached in an open army car from the Anacostia naval station side of the big flying ground, and were almost at the stand before the throng recognized them. Then there was an out-burst of cheers, handclapping and whistling. Huenefeld, Koehl and Fitzmaurice doffed their hats and saluted.

Distances Ever Narrowing.

Secretary of State Kellogg heartily welcomed them as they came to the reviewing stand.

"You have marked another milestone on the path of man's conquest over the forces of nature," he said. "Moreover, I like to consider your achievement symbolical of the ever narrowing distances which separate the nations of the modern world, both in a real and in a figurative sense.

"Your undertaking itself was an example of international cooperation, and its happy outcome is all the more gratifying to this country to whose upbuilding the German and Irish nations have so richly contributed."

The ceremonies at Bolling Field lasted only a short time. Army airplanes stunted overhead while Kellogg was speaking. Colonel Lindbergh greeted the fliers, who seemed thrilled at his presence. Captain Koehl clung to his hand and spoke hurriedly.

Lindy Into Background.

Huenefeld afterward observed, "there is the greatest flier in the world."

Lindbergh effaced himself as the procession started for the city at 10:25 to the music of the "Star Spangled Banner," "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and the Irish National anthem.

During the ceremonies it became known President Coolidge was signing the bill for distinguished flying crosses for the trio, and that, as a mark of special distinction, was arranging to present the medals when the fliers came to the White House at noon.

New York to London in 48 Hours Possible

Test Flights to Be Made This Summer by British Airship Which Has Luxuries of Ocean Liner.

Washington, May 2.—From New York to London in 48 hours and with all the comforts of the most luxurious ocean liners!

This may sound like a dream of Julius Verne but it will be accomplished this year by the R-100, a British airship, built under direction of Commander C. Dennis Burney, M. P.

The Burney ship, of 5,000,000 cubic feet displacement, has progressed so far that it is expected to be ready for trial flights in July.

American capital has become interested in the R-100 and a Detroit group has taken an option on a substantial interest in the Burney company with a view of establishing a fleet of six 9,000,000 cubic feet air liners built on the Burney designs and for use in London-New York traffic.

Half of these ships would be built in the United States and half in England with the operating company owned jointly by British and American capital.

The R-100 will carry 100 passengers and ten tons of express freight. It will be able to make the eastward passage in 48 hours and the trip from London to New York via the Azores in 60 hours. The southern route on the westward passage is contemplated to avoid head winds.

If plans for the trans-Atlantic airship company materialize, the R-100 will be used as an experimental ship, followed up by the larger dirigibles with capacities for 140 passengers and 20 tons of freight.

The R-100 has been furnished, the staterooms are completed and rugs have already been laid in the dining salon.

A BISHOP TO GO TO TRIAL

DANISH SCANDAL BEFORE M. E. GENERAL CONFERENCE.

ASKS REINSTATEMENT

Suspended After Charge of Mishandling of Missionary Funds Sent to Denmark.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—One of the major scandals of the Methodist Episcopal church will be given its final airing at the General Quadrennial Conference which opened in convention hall here Tuesday morning.

Fourteen ministers of the church will sit as a court of justice to hear the case of Bishop Anton Bast of Denmark, central figure in a disciplinary action which has compelled the attention of communicants in all the nations where Methodism is organized.

This austere court, which is to be selected by the hierarcy of the church, forty frock-coated and severe looking Bishops, in all probability will hear the evidence in executive session and announce its verdict to the general conference toward the close of the thirty-day session.

Still Has Following.

Tense moments are promised in this trial, in which Christian justice is an issue. Although persecuted and stripped of his Bishopric Habiliments, Bishop Bast has many followers who have left nothing undone to clear his name of scandalous charges and restore him in the good graces of his fellow churchmen again.

Dr. Otto Fabricus of Denmark, a Barrister, who was special assistant prosecutor for the Danish Crown in the trial of Bishop Bast several years ago, arrived in Kansas City with three trunks laden with evidence against the Danish divine. Dr. Fabricus will head the prosecution in the fight to secure Bishop Bast's permanent dethronement.

The charges against the Danish divine grew out of the alleged misapplication of profits derived from a printing establishment operated by him for ten years. When he launched upon his venture he announced to the world that profits of the concern would go into a mission fund. Evidence brought to light in his trial on charges of fraudulent misrepresentation, however, showed that the funds had been used for private purposes.

Other Charges Made.

Other charges against Bishop Bast included alleged mishandling of large sums of missionary money sent to Denmark from American missionary and Sunday school organizations. These, however, were dismissed when a Danish Tribunal found him guilty and imposed a three month's prison sentence on the first charge.

Bishop Bast served out his sentence and meantime a hearing before a church tribunal at the Hague resulted in his being suspended as Bishop. The trial before the Kansas City conference is on his appeal for reinstatement in the church, either as Bishop or a minister on pension.

More than usual interest is attached to the case because it is the first of its kind ever to come before a General Conference of the church. And today a flush of expectancy prevailed among delegates and Bishops alike as they prepared to enter their first session tomorrow. A spokesman for the Bishops said more than one million dollars of funds of the Danish mission was involved in the Bast scandal.

To Demand Open Hearing.

The delegation from Denmark and friends of the Rev. John P. Ingerslew, Danish pastor who first made the charges against the Bishop, said they would demand a full and open hearing of the entire affair. 'Rev. Ingerslew, because he was a complainant against his superior, Bishop Bast, in a civil case, himself was suspended from his pastorate. He now has a suit pending in the Danish Supreme Court for $10,000 salary alleged to be due him.

Bishop and His Accuser

Seven Cardinals on the Sick List Now

Sherdel, Hafey, Holm, O'Farrell, Bottomley and Two Others Out of St. Louis Line-Up.

St. Louis, May 2.—Seven St. Louis Cardinals were on the disabled list today.

The newest addition to the list was Bill Sherdel, star southpaw, who went to a hospital suffering from fever after injury to an ankle recently.

Chick Hafey, outfielder, who suffered a slight concussion of the brain when he ran into a wall in Monday's game, probably will be out of the lineup for a week or more. Others on the sick list were Wattie Holm, third baseman, who is recovering from an operation; catcher Bob O'Farrell, suffering from a dislocated thumb; catcher Gus Mancuso, split finger; Jim Bottomley, influenza, and Howard Williamson, utility outfielder, broken ankle.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD.

By United Press

Yesterday's Hero—Harry Rice, Detroit Tigers' center fielder, who drove in seven runs with a home run, double and single in the Tigers' 10 to 5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Babe Ruth went on rampage and the Yankees went with him, clouting out 16 hits to beat the Washington Senators, 8 to 5. Babe made four hits, including a home run and triple.

Ty Cobb's single in the seventh drove in what proved to be the tying and winning runs in the Philadelphia Athletics' 5 to 3 win over the Boston Red Sox.

Johnny Hodapp, Indians third baseman, drove in four runs and the Cleveland tribe beat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3.

The New York Giants regained first place in the National League by defeating the Brooklyn Robins, with their ace, Dazzy Vance, on the mound, 4 to 2. Cohen's single, Ott's double and Harper's homer accounted for the Giant's runs.

Red Lucas outpitched Grover Cleveland Alexander, who gave way to a pinch-hitter in the seventh, and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 3.

Carmen Hill hurled the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-to-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, allowing the McCarthymen only five hits.

The Boston Braves won from the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 3 and moved up a notch to sixth place as the Cubs came down.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, May 2.—Forecasts of rain over drouth menaced winter wheat fields sent all grains into a further spectacular decline on the board of trade. Corn and oats dropped sharply with wheat.

Final figures: Wheat 3⅝ to 5¼c lower; the May delivery lost most; Corn 2⅝ to 3¼c off and oats ⅝ to ¾c lower. Provisions closed lower.

Wheat declined sharply just after a firm opening, commission houses selling heavily.

Wheat traders bought on the dips and sold on the bulges throughout the day but profit taking was heavy on the belief that the dry weather in winter wheat fields was breaking. This was confirmed by forecasts predicting showers and cooler in Kansas and Nebraska. The cash market was ½c lower with receipts at 31 cars. Export business of about 500,000 bushels was reported, mostly Manitobas and Durum.

Leading professionals sold corn heavily and prices receded. The recent advance in cash prices has caused sales to increase throughout the corn belt. Receipts were 216 cars, and the cash market declined ½ cent.

Oats changed fractionally but interest in wheat and corn pits overshadowed this market. The cash market was unchanged and receipts were 59 cars.

SMITH NEAR A MAJORITY

PASSES 500 MARK WITH CALIFORNIA VICTORY.

HOOVER ALSO GAINS

New York Governor Now Only 230 Delegates Short of Democratic Nomination.

Washington, May 2.—Governor Al Smith's selected delegate strength passed the 500 mark today as a result of his unexpectedly one-sided victory in California.

Tabulation by the United Press of chosen Democratic delegates gives Smith 504—just 46 short of a simple majority in the convention and 230 short of the two-third majority required for the nomination.

The returns also added materially to the strength of Secretary of Commerce Hoover in the Republican race. The tabulation showed him with 278 delegates minimum, including only those instructed and undisputed uninstructed delegates who have announced their intention of voting for him on the first ballot.

278 for Hoover.

To Probe Delaney's Training for Sharkey

Defeated Boxer May Be Barred From New York as Result of Alleged Laxness.

New York, May 2.—Jack Sharkey's sensational one-round knockout of Jack Delaney may lead to a thorough investigation of the match and the training tactics of Delaney by the New York State Athletic Commission.

After announcing that the commission already has started an investigation, Chairman James A. Farley repudiated this statement by saying that he was not at liberty to speak for the boxing body.

The investigation, it was learned, will be directed at Delaney's tactics. Word has been received from Bridgeport, Conn., where Delaney lives and trained for the bout, that the former light heavyweight champion worked as little as three minutes on several occasions before the fight.

His training program, it was said, consisted mostly of golf, the French-Canadian regarding Sharkey as a "set-up."

If such is found to be the case, Delaney probably will be barred from boxing in New York State, following a precedent set in 1925 when Eddie Shea was quietly barred from appearing here after he was knocked out in four rounds by the then bantamweight champion, Phil Rosenberg.

Sharkey knocked out Delaney in 1 minute, 13 seconds, Monday night.

Families of Bremen Flyers Share in Glory

So this is New York! Wives of two of the transatlantic Bremen's daring crew arrived just in time to share their husbands' glory when Commandant Fitzmaurice, Captain Koenl and Baron von Huenefeld were officially welcomed by Mayor Walker and thousands in New York. This picture shows (left) Mrs. Fitzmaurice, their daughter, Patricia Fitzmaurice, 6, and Mrs. Koehl as they stepped from the liner Dresden, just before the triumphal parade up Fifth avenue began. In the rear is Alfred Meehan of Mayor Walker's welcoming committee. Baron von Huenefeld, the third Bremen flyer, is unmarried.

SEE DIVORCE AS CALAMITY

METHODIST BISHOPS TERM IT A THREAT TO CIVILIZATION.

FIRM FOR PROHIBITION

World Court, and League of Nations Also Urged in Address to General Conference.

Speaker Collapses.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—Bishop Luther B. Wilson of New York collapsed today while reading the Episcopal address before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today. The reading was completed by Bishop Ernest G. Richardson of Atlanta, Ga.

Bishop Wilson was carried from the hall to his room at Hotel Muehlebach. His condition was not serious, it was said.

Fundamentalists Fail.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—An effort on the part of fundamentalists to air their grievances before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here was frustrated today when delegates voted to refer to a standing committee a petition asking for an investigation of church schools and colleges for their alleged modernistic teachings.

The vote was considered by church leaders as significant of the liberal views of a majority of the delegates especially on questions of church doctrine.

Kansas City, May 2.—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today concerned itself with world problems—with such questions as divorce, prohibition enforcement, international goodwill, the World Court, the League of Nations and, in fact, with every major problem bearing on human conduct and administration of government.

With the reading of the Episcopal address in convention hall this morning, the vast business of the general conference was formally begun. The address, a lengthy document of many thousand words, was prepared by the forty Methodist bishops in session here and was read to the delegates by Bishop Luther B. Wilson of New York. The reading took several hours.

The addfess was a statement of the policies favored by the Hierachy of the church and was replete with information on world matters. It will be used by delegates as a guide in their deliberations during the balance of this month. Appeal was made especially for greater righteousness and less adherence to sensuous and worldly things in life.

Divorce "Major Calamity"

Divorce was treated as one of the country's major calamities, threatening the existence of christian home-life and even the very foundation of civilization itself. So-called companionate or trial marriage, newest fad in the marriage mart, was criticized as an attempt on the part of some to obtain legal sanction to wholesale martial exchange. Leaders in the movement to secure repeal of the prohibition act were roundly scored.

The address gave its approval of the League of Nations and World Court, the movement to co-ordinate all the religious forces of the world in the interest of world peace, unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and of the plan to give certain foreign countries greater autonomy in the matter of selecting native bishops and church administration.

"Whatever weakens respect for the parental relation threatens the foundation of the home, and the recognized sacredness of that home is one of the cornerstones in the structure of civilization," Bishop Wilson said in discussing divorce. And notwithstanding all the extravagant misinterpretations of the stage and the influence of neurotic literature in the guise of art, he said, there is nothing quite so bad to home life as the tragedy of the divorce courts.

One-Seventh of Marriages

The speaker went on to say that in the United States alone divorces granted in a year are equal to one-seventh of the marriages solemnized. The deplorable flood of suggestions for easier and more convenient methods of divorce, he stated, involves such prenuptial agreements as appear to anticipate the dissolution of the relationship. This seems to be what is meant in so-called companionate or trial marriage and its effect is to lend the status of legal pronouncement to the transparent dress of alleged respectability, Bishop Wilson declared.

The ministry and laity of the Methodist church was urged to stand pat in its opposition to divorce except upon spiritual grounds. Re-marriage of parties, even though they are the innocent victims of a divorce action, except where the action is based upon martial infidelity, should not be tolerated, he said.

Turning to prohibition, Bishop Wilson said many influences are at work to defeat the purpose of the prohibition law. He pleaded with delegates and the disciples of Methodism to resist any attempt that might be made to change the Constitution and thereby release the liquor traffic from the restraint which the law imposes. "To approve modification would simply be starting a movement of moral descent and would amount to a confession that the soberness of the nation is neither undesirable or impossible," he said, adding that "Methodists dare not condone any compromise with lawlessness."

For Inter-Racial Good Will.

A considerable portion of the address was devoted to a plea for fostering international and inter-racial goodwill. America's relation to other nations, the speaker said, has been embarrassed considerably by such legislation as the Japanese exclusion act, the effect of which has been felt in every land where conditions seem to suggest a clash of color.

"The narrow intolerance, which in this country pursues its course of suspicion and intimidation, while by utter perversion of speech claiming that its standards are both Christian and American, deserves the unmeasured condemnation of every Methodist Episcopalean."

The World Court and the League of Nations, he continued, embody practical steps in the direction of world peace, but for the United States to refuse her wholehearted participation "is utterly inconsistent with its protestation of friendliness with other nations." World peace, the speaker said, will never come so long as diplomacy concerns itself chiefly with the "great game of wits for national monetary advantage."

Opposes Military Training.

Although convinced the time has not come when the country can discontinue its national military and naval schools, Bishop Wilson said compulsory military training in school and college should be discouraged in the interest of "patriotic obligation."

Conscription of wealth as well as men was urged in event the country ever becomes involved in another war.

Charges Against Pittsburgh Bishop.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—Charges of maladministration and immorality have been filed with the general secretary of the Methodist Episcopal conference here against Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Pittsburgh area, it became known today.

The charges were filed April 18, 1927, by the Rev. Geo. A. Cooks, Ilmington, Del., who has a charge in Louisville, Pa. A copy of the charges was sent to the bishop at the same time, Cook said.

The maladministration charges are in connection with two cases submitted to the annual conference of the area last year. The immorality charge is based on the alleged indorsement of the theory of evolution by Bishop McConnell published in a pamphlet of the American Civil Liberties Union in January, 1927. The immoral charge in no way deals with moral turpitude but involves alleged violations of church doctrines and dogmas.

College Team Named for Meet at Tarkio

Try-Outs for Dashes, Hurdles and Pole Vault Yet to Be Held, However.

The swiftest, the strongest and the springiest men among the State Teachers College track athletes were chosen yesterday in the tryouts on the College field to represent the school in the coming triangular meet at Tarkio, Saturday.

Nine men were picked to compete in seven events. Hurdle eliminations will be held as soon as possible.

The events and the men picked are:

Broad jump, Lloyd Hollar and Frank Daniels.

High jump, Hollar and Cecil Smith.

Shot put, Marion Search and Hollar.

Half mile, Pierce Tilley and Carl King.

Quarter mile, Wendell Culp, Daniels, King, Smith, Tilley, Ora Petty and Hollar.

Javelin, Search and Paul Burks.

In the mile, Roy Smith was the only contestant. Maryville entries in the dashes, pole vault and hurdles are yet to be decided.

The three cornered affair will involve Missouri Wesleyan, Tarkio College and Maryville State Teachers College.

Aunt Jemima Mills Plan Big Expansion

St. Joseph, Mo., May 2.—An expansion program costing several millions of dollars will be launched at the Aunt Jemima factory of the Quaker Oats Company shortly, it was announced here.

A 2,000,000 bushel elevator, three ten-story buildings and forty-eight concrete tanks are among the additions expected.

The work will be completed by the fall of 1929, R. R. Clark, manager of the branch, said.

TO CAMP AT FORT RILEY

BATTERY C TO USUAL TRAINING POINT THIS SUMMER.

PLAN FORCED MARCH

Motor Caravan May Make Trip in Two Days Instead of Four.—Start July 15.

Battery C, of Maryville and the Service Battery at Burlington Junction, units of the 128th Field Artillery, Missouri National Guard, will go to Fort Riley, Kan., again for the summer camp.

A dispatch yesterday from Jefferson City stated that the dates for the camp were announced by Adjutant-General A. V. Adams as July 15 to 24. However, Sergeant Guy Mercer, instructing officer of the Regular Army, who is stationed with Battery C, stated the Battery here had received tentative plans calling for a camp starting July 15, and as the unit must spend fifteen days in summer training the camp would last until July 29.

A full strength Battery probably will leave here in the motor caravan. The officers are expecting a minimum of sixty-three and a maximum of sixty-seven enlisted men to go to the annual summer training camp.

As the Maryville unit of the 128th regiment was given the highest rating of any firing battery by federal inspectors, the plans now, which are subject to change, call for Battery C to make a forced march to Fort Riley. That is, instead of taking the usual three or four days to make the trip by the motorized battery, an attempt will be made to arrive at Fort Riley in two days.

This has been proposed so that a prefiring school for the advanced officers of the regiment can be conducted at Fort Riley prior to the arrival of the usual units.

If the present plans of the commanding officers of the regiment are carried out, the Maryville Battery will leave here early the morning of July 15 and arrive at Fort Riley the next night, which will mean a ten or twelve hour drive with the trucks each day. The night camp would be made near Topeka and the Battery would move on to Fort Riley the next day.

The unit would arrive in Maryville July 29, to conclude the summer training as the time spent on the road now is counted as part of the training period.

Last year the Burlington Junction and Maryville batteries joined here and continued to St. Joseph, where they were joined by the Albany Battery, meeting the other units of the regiment at Topeka.

Legislature Is Not the Worst Offender

Associated Industries Cite Figures to Show Other Increases in Cost of Governing State.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—The increasing expenses of the Missouri legislature, which so frequently are condemned as extravagant, appear small in comparison with the cost of some other agencies of the state government, according to a digest of governmental costs issued here today by the Associated Industries of Missouri.

The digest of expenditures shows that the legislature in 1901 cost the people of Missouri $173,889, the report stated. This had increased to $282,931 in 1913-1914, and to $344,977 in 1925-1926. Reduced to percentages, it was an increase of 62.7 per cent in 1913-1914 over 1901-1902, and 98.4 per cent in 1925-1926 over the same year. It was an increase of 21.9 per cent in 1925-1926 over 1913-1914.

"In spite of the charges of extravagance leveled at the legislature, its percentage of increase also seems small compared to the sums spent by elective officials, whose increase as a group was 128.3 per cent more in 1913-14 than in 1901-02, was 883.5 per cent greater in 1925-26 than in the first biennium of the present century, and in 1925-26 was 330.7 per cent more than in 1913-14," the digest showed.

"Legislative expenditures when reduced to percentages also seem small in comparison with the percentage increase of the Board of the Permanent Seat of Government, which is the custodial body in charge of the new state capitol at Jefferson City, the heating and lighting of the capitol, the supreme court building and the governor's mansion.

"Comparison to the percentage increase for caring for the capitol and surrounding buildings, however, is only relative, because construction of the new capitol has created new duties which make an exact comparison impossible," the report said. "All comparisons, even though some new problems enter into consideration, however, emphasize the constant upward trend in governmental costs in the state."
